Skylark Dezso Kosztolanyi

Skylark is a woman in her mid-30's, an "old maid", living with her mother and father. They've fallen into such a groove that they have become pathetically dependent on each other. Skylark is also quite ugly, which has given her family much shame in not being able to marry her off.

Skylark by Dezső Kosztolányi - Goodreads

Kosztolányi was born in Szabadka, Austria-Hungary (today Subotica, Serbia) in 1885. The city served as a model for the fictional town of Sárszeg, in which he set his novella Skylark as well as The Golden Kite. He was the child of Árpád Kosztolányi (1859–1926), physics and chemistry professor

Skylark - Dezső Kosztolányi | The Captive Reader

Skylark is a week-in-the-life story of the Vajkays, Ákos and Antónia and their thirty-five year old daughter, Skylark, in September 1899. It is not a typical week in their lives, however; instead, it's one where, with Skylark spending the week off visiting relatives, the family routine that has remained unchanged for years is suddenly and surprisingly radically disrupted.
