Victorian and Lancashire slang you need in your life March 17, 2019 / Cassie Britland. I love words. I'm not an expert in them and I can only speak one language, which is really lame, because I find words – their origins, their meanings and the way those meanings change over time – so fascinating. As an adult, I curse High School Me for ...

Lancashire, had a long history of supplying wool to skilled weavers in Europe and southern England, as well as having many cottager weavers itself by the 18th century. But the advent of increased imports of cotton needing processing was a trigger to innovation. John Kay, Richard Arkwright, Samuel Crompton, and James Hargreaves were from Lancashire.

Deep Cleaning a Victorian Tiled Lobby Floor After the tiling had been completed, I left the floor to cure and fully dry and returned at a later date to give the floor an overall clean. For this I ran a coarse 200-grit diamond floor pad across the floor lubricated with water and used handheld diamond blocks for the edges where the pad can't reach.

In industrial Lancashire, as in few other English communities, the turn of the twentieth century could be seen as modern times dressed in bowler hats and moustaches. Photographs of street scenes taken in Manchester and Burnley, Oldham and Accrington in the 1890s take us to a world that had been disciplined and regimented by factory work for a century or more.
